This course is an intensive study of the songs and symphonies of Gustav Mahler. Topics will include:

- Mahler’s compositional style, with particular attention to musical analysis, text setting, relationship to programs, self-borrowing, stylistic heterogeneity, semantic content, and revisions
- Mahler’s cultural context, aesthetics, and philosophical outlook, and their relationship to his compositions
- Reception history, including early performances and criticism, anti-Semitism, the Mahler Renaissance, and filmic representations of the composer

Class will be conducted as a seminar, with heavy emphasis on class discussion of music and readings, student presentations, and written work.
