

Emily Honeyman is from Ann Arbor, MI, and currently a junior at the IU Jacobs School of Music, where she studies double bass with Lawrence Hurst. Her earliest musical training started on the piano when she was six. When she was ten, she began playing the cello and a year later she began her studies of the double bass with Derek Weller. During her high school years, she was principal bass in the Michigan Youth Symphony and for several summers, principal bass with the Interlochen World Youth Symphony Orchestra. Honeyman is a prize winner in both the International Society of Bassists and American String Teachers Association solo competitions.
